MARKET COMMENTARY

Australian equities navigated a turbulent quarter marked by shifting policy expectations and stark performance divergence, ultimately rising almost 5% through the period. The market's resilience was tested through one of the most volatile reporting seasons in recent memory, where sharp swings in heavyweight stocks underscored the risks inherent in a top-heavy market structure. The domestic economy proved more resilient than anticipated, with stronger consumption and household spending challenging forecasts for an extended easing cycle, while inflation data exceeded expectations and prompted markets to narrow rate cut assumptions. Sector performance reflected these cross-currents, with Materials rising over 20% while Financials gained only 1.3%, marking a significant rotation in market leadership. Healthcare endured one of its sharpest falls on record following CSL's high-profile disappointment. Consumer sectors delivered resilient performance supported by retail earnings beats, while gold producers posted exceptional gains as safe-haven demand surged amid concerns over fiscal sustainability and central bank independence.

PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The portfolio's largest overweight positions include Washington H. Soul Pattinson, News Corporation and Flutter Entertainment PLC. Conversely, the portfolio's largest relative underweight positions include Macquarie Group Ltd (not held), CSL Limited and National Australia Bank Limited.

Newmont Corporation contributed positively to performance over the quarter (+48.5%) as the gold rally continues. Newmont's last earnings results exceeded market expectations, with higher production volumes and disciplined cost control driving robust free cash flow generation. Operational efficiency gains across the portfolio supported improved margins, while management's capital allocation framework continues to prioritise shareholder returns through a combination of dividends and buybacks. The company's strengthened balance sheet with modest net debt levels provides financial flexibility as it executes on its operational improvement plan. With the gold price remaining elevated and macro conditions including heightened political volatility and a weakening US dollar remaining constructive for the precious metal, Newmont remains well-positioned to deliver strong earnings while offering investors leveraged exposure to further gold price appreciation.

Glencore contributed to fund performance after recently being added to the fund, up over 20% for the quarter. Glencore offers selective exposure that can only be found offshore with a unique commodity mix and potential earnings growth outlook. Glencore is one of the major commodity trading houses, with earnings generated from both trading commodities, as well as its significant mining operations in copper, zinc, met coal, thermal coal and a number of other smaller contributors. Within this mix, the key drivers are trading, copper and coal prices with the copper price appreciating largely over the past month as the world's second largest copper mine had an unfortunate incident and is now offline for an unknown period of time. Glencore's share price had halved between 2023 and 2025, with a large contribution of this earnings decline due to the coal price cycle. Glencore has taken out some of its seaborne supply, as have been a number of peers. Even a modest recovery in coal prices can drive a significant increase in earnings and free cash flow, which we expect will see Glencore use to lift shareholder returns. Glencore's copper business is also attractive over both the short and long term. Copper prices have shown strength this year, with LME copper prices ~9% higher than a year ago. Glencore will produce 850kt - 890kt of copper in 2025 and has a target of reaching 1Mt by 2028. Longer term, Glencore has a pipeline of greenfield and brownfield copper projects that could lift production even further under the right pricing environment.

Myer underperformed the market over the quarter with the stock down -20.7%. The company is currently in the midst of undertaking an ambitious turnaround to regain relevance with consumers in apparel and beauty following many years of stagnating revenue growth and weak profitability. This requires significant upfront investment in management capability, brands and marketing, internal technology support systems and logistics. The scale of the investment surprised the market at the recent FY25 results, and the shares reacted negatively. There is significant operating leverage to be gained if Myer can execute on its plan over the next 2-3 years which would see a material improvement in earnings and cash flow. Importantly it has a strong net cash balance sheet to support it through this turnaround period.

Premier underperformed the market over the quarter with the stock down -4.8%. Premier is undergoing a transition post divestment of Apparel Brands to Myer in January 2025. The continuing operations of Premier Retail are Peter Alexander and Smiggle. Peter Alexander is growing very strongly with sales more than double that generated six years ago. It is impressive to see no pull back in sales momentum post COVID, unlike many retailers that experienced a temporary spike in demand followed by a large retreat. It likely indicates the Peter Alexander brand is yet to mature, with a number of new and larger footprint stores planned in coming years to capture growth in new categories such as women's, men's, children's and plus size as well as international market opportunities. Smiggle by contrast has experienced a decline in sales since COVID, along with several store closures in the UK. Weaker Smiggle sales offset Peter Alexander strength in FY25, leaving Premier's retail sales growth relatively flat. Higher than expected employee and rental costs also impacted earnings margins and together this has seen shares decline ~9% over the quarter.

OUTLOOK

Markets enter the final quarter with gains intact but underlying tensions building. Recent months have revealed sharp sector rotation and elevated post-result volatility, as resilient consumer demand collides with margin pressures and persistent inflation. Australian household spending has proved surprisingly robust, challenging expectations for an extended easing cycle, while globally, leadership remains concentrated in technology names despite growing fragility in sentiment. Political risks have intensified as questions around central bank independence drive gold near record highs and weigh on the US dollar. Valuations now sit near historical extremes, suggesting asymmetric downside risk at a time when policy uncertainty, tariff disruptions, and moderating earnings momentum argue for caution. Looking ahead, markets face a more complex growth backdrop. The US commands attention given elevated equity valuations and deficit concerns. Europe confronts weak business conditions and tariff headwinds, while China's stabilisation depends on sustained policy support amid cooling consumption. Domestically, growth is expected to remain subdued as the economy absorbs tighter policy settings. Navigating this environment requires discipline and patience as investors assess shifting market leadership and an increasingly uneven path forward.
